A Vote for Responsible Land Use

In November, Iowa's communities gained some wonderful new supporters — a group of elected officials interested in responsible land use. When added to a few officials who are already in office, they constitute the beginning of a "critical mass" of politicians who understand the importance of developing communities in ways that benefit everyone, not just a few people. Some will be participating in a panel discussion at our annual meeting on April 8 in Iowa City.

Regenia D. Bailey, M.A., M.B.A.
Iowa City — City Council

Regenia is serving in her first term as an Iowa City City Council Member. As part of her work on Council, she serves as Mayor Pro Tem, is Vice-President of the Convention and Visitors' Bureau Board, and serves on the Council's Economic Development Committee. Regenia grew up in Iowa City and is an alumnus of the Iowa City Area Chamber Leadership Program.

"I'm interested in developing regional transportation for the Corridor, developing walkable neighborhoods, and ensuring that pedestrian and bicycle commuters are not ignored in our transportation planning. One of the reasons that the Iowa City area is such an attractive place to live is that one can drive in any direction and be in the country in 15 minutes. I'm concerned that as this area continues to grow, we will lose the rural landscape to residential development. This will negatively affect the quality of life, as well as economic development in our area."

Kamyar Enshayan
Cedar Falls — City Council

"My main interest in better land use planning is primarily on reducing the size of a city's footprint on the land as well as its impact on the watershed. We know it is possible to develop without growing in size. We know it is possible to develop our cities so that it costs less to run them. I am interested in learning practical and innovative ways cities can implement to keep the scale small, use less energy and resources to run the city, and respect the watershed."

Brian Fagan
Cedar Rapids — City Council

Brian Fagan is one of three at-large representatives on the Cedar Rapids City Council and serves as mayor. He was involved with The First, the citizens' group that formed to oppose the widening of First Avenue in Cedar Rapids from five to seven lanes. He assisted in the preparation of the proposal to name First Avenue as an Iowa Great Place and obtain funding to use context sensitive design principles in the design of the roadway.

He is an attorney with Moyer & Bergman in Cedar Rapids and worked for Jim Leach in the district and Washington, DC offices.

BRIGHT FUTURES

Best Development Awards

by Jonna Higgins-Freese

It’s time again for one of my favorite 1000 Friends of Iowa activities — accepting applications for our annual Best Development Awards.

So many great things have happened as a result of these awards. Last year, I stopped by Grinnell to visit the award-winning Strand Theater. This truly inspiring project kept a business downtown in a beautiful old building, instead of in a multi-plex on the edge of town. While I was there, Bill Menner and Jim Ramsey mentioned how important downtown associations are to responsible growth, and suggested we see if it would be possible to expand the Community Main Street program — and Grinnell isn’t even an official Main Street Community! We decided we would make this a priority, and we’ve been gratified by the level of support and willingness to contact legislators that the various communities have shown.

Somerset Village, another former award winner, provided the site for a lovely reception and walking tour at our last annual meeting. This year, the Peninsula Neighborhood in Iowa City will do the same. The folks at The Peninsula Neighborhood have also put us in touch with some realtors interested in smart growth and appeared with us on a local access television program about smart growth.

The Best Development Awards provide us with a great way to recognize and connect to responsible development that’s happening around the state — I can’t wait to see what applications we get this year!

If there’s a new or renovated commercial, civic, or residential development in your community that promotes infill, mixes uses, or improves the existing downtown, please submit a nomination form, available on our web site at www.kfoi.org.

Full application criteria and guidelines for the Best Development Awards can be found on our web site at www.kfoi.org.

Applications are due by February 28.
A Vote for Responsible Land Use

Do you know of other elected officials or planning and zoning commissioners who support smart growth? Let us know so we can add them to our network.

Dave Franker
North Liberty — Mayor

"Over the past few years North Liberty has become one of the fastest-growing towns in Iowa. But that growth was accomplished without an inclusive, collaborative process in the community and with a disregard for adequate infrastructure to complement the growth.

"Based on my experience as a school board member, where I advocated for Iowa’s first Leadership in Environmental and Energy Design (LEED) school, I plan to lead North Liberty in a process that is open, inclusive and collaborative. In doing so, we have it in our hands, due to our favorable market position between Cedar Rapids and Iowa City, to grow in a smart, environmentally sound fashion. I have advocated for a "Good Neighbor" policy, so that citizens in a potentially affected neighborhood will have an opportunity to give their ideas before any proposed land use change comes before the Planning and Zoning Commission.

"As a city councilor in 2005 I led a Transit Task Force and now as mayor I will oversee the implementation of beginning transit service for North Liberty in 2006."

Gerry Kuhl
North Liberty — City Council

"My belief is that we need to be wise stewards of the resources we have been given so that we will pass on to future generations resources that are in at least the same condition that we received them. Among those precious resources are water, lakes and streams, fuel, and our air. We need to be concerned about what we as people do to our own bodies and evaluate our use of chemicals and how they affect us and our environment. We need to also conserve resources. During my term I intend to pursue policies that are friendly to our environment. I am committed to sensible growth."

Rod Sullivan
Supervisor — Johnson County

"I am an unabashed environmentalist, and as a member of the Board of Supervisors, I have defended the environment at every opportunity. I have always voted against making exceptions to our Land Use Plan that favor development and harm the environment.

"I have worked on and pushed for improvements to the Land Use Plan, stronger septic laws, a sensitive areas ordinance, a watershed study, increased funding for the Conservation Department, incentives for workers who use mass transit, a buy local policy, reductions in road building, and increases in trail building. I am on two committees studying mass transit (including light rail) for the Linn & Johnson County area."

Tom Podzimek
Cedar Rapids — City Council

"Over the last 50 years, vast amounts of the forests and prairies that once covered the Cedar Rapids area have been eliminated. We can’t reverse these losses, but we can look at what we have left and make a commitment to preserve it for our children and future generations. We can also make sure that as the city grows, developers contribute to the health of the city by providing connecting paths to schools, parks and businesses so that we don’t have to use cars to get everywhere.

"For too long, some people have believed in treating all resources like they must be used up as quickly as possible for profit. This “fire sale” mentality has lead to wholesale destruction that benefits a few people at the expense of the majority. It also destroys many things that future generations would enjoy and pass on if they had the chance."

LEGISLATIVE UPDATE:

1000 Friends Identify Policy Priorities

1000 Friends of Iowa has identified increased funding for the Community Main Street program and placing sensible limits on the use of eminent domain as priorities for the upcoming legislative session.

We will also continue to monitor legislative activities for other items of interest to 1000 Friends' members.

COMMUNITY MAIN STREET

More than 50 communities have agreed to contact their legislators regarding additional funding for the Community Main Street program. 1000 Friends supports expanded funding for this program because it is an effective tool for directing development downtown rather than to the fringe of a community. In addition, it is one of the Department of Economic Development's most effective programs, generating an average of $66 in private investment for every public dollar spent in the last 20 years. Please ask your legislator to support a $200,000 increase in funding for the program.

EMINENT DOMAIN

Given last summer's Supreme Court ruling in the Kelo vs. New Holland case, Iowa's legislators are bound to discuss eminent domain (the government's power to purchase private property at fair market value for certain purposes). Our goal is to ensure that any legislation retains sensible limits on the use or abuse of eminent domain, while retaining it as an important tool that can sometimes be used to promote responsible land use and infill development.

NEWS FROM FRIENDS ACROSS IOWA

Polk County: COMPREHENSIVE PLAN

Over the past year Polk County residents have participated in a series of citizen input meetings to create a new comprehensive plan. Polk County's new plan will guide growth until 2030 and provide the foundation upon which Iowa's newest and largest urban renewal plan (The SE Polk Rural Water Urban Renewal Plan containing 6000 acres) will rely.

If you live in Polk County, please mark your calendar for January 30 or 31st. Polk County will be holding a total of four Open Houses on those two dates to unveil their new Polk County Comprehensive Plan. Visit the Polk County website at www.co.polk.ia.us and click on Draft Plan, to view the new plan they are creating. At various times in January, Polk County will update the site with new sections of the plan. Public hearings will be held on the plans after citizens are given a chance to view them.

Madison County: LAKE OPPOSITION

A proposal to build a 2,500 acre lake that would flood homes, century farms, and rare native oak savanna woodland is being opposed by a number of local residents. The lake is supported by a number of business and government interests, including former gubernatorial candidate Doug Gross, who owns land in the area. The lake, which would provide drinking water and recreation, is expected to cost the public at least $30 million. For further details on the project, see the City View article at: www.dmcityview.com/archives/dec/12-01-05/index.

Johnson County: NEWPORT ROAD

A group of 58 residents in Johnson County have sued the Board of Supervisors over a plan to widen and relocate Newport Road north of Iowa City. The lawsuit alleges that the Supervisors pushed the consulting firm to change the original findings that recommended working within the original right-of-way, violated the county land use plan, and violated Iowa Code requirements that farmland be used as right-of-way only as a last resort.

The group has the support of Farm Bureau. Mary Ferentz, wife of Hawkeye football coach Kirk Ferentz, helped raise the profile of the issue and assisted the group in successfully arguing to change the date of a public hearing on the road, originally scheduled for December 29, when many area residents planned to be in Florida for the Outback Bowl.

Iowa City: PETITION HEARING

The City of Iowa City is contesting our petition to join as intervener in the citizen lawsuit against the rezoning for Wal-Mart. A hearing date will be set later in January for a judge to determine whether 1000 Friends will contribute to the suit without going outside the bounds of the current scope of the case.

RESPONSIBLE LAND USE IN IOWA: Success and Challenges

Saturday April 8, 2006
Registration 8:30 a.m. • Conference 9:00 – 4:00

Zion Lutheran Church
310 N. Johnson Street, Iowa City

Keynote Address: Craig Malin

Mr. Malin is the City Administrator in Davenport, Iowa and a member of the Congress for the New Urbanism. He was instrumental in facilitating the visioning and community input process that led to the creation of Prairie Heights, a neo-traditional development in a growing area of the city that will include more than 1,100 new residences over 630 acres, 220 acres of which are owned by the city. The mixed-use plan includes some retail area on the 53rd Street side, a 126-acre public park, and environmental/green-space corridors throughout. Mr. Malin will discuss his experiences living in and working to promote neo-traditional development in several Midwestern communities.

The day’s events will also include:
- Tour of the Peninsula Neighborhood Development Project — Winner of a 2005 Best Development Award
- Reports from Around the State • Business Meeting • Best Development Awards
- Panel Discussion with local elected officials about smart growth, including:
  Participants: Jim Popken (Ames), Kamyar Enshayan (Cedar Falls), Brian Fagan (Cedar Rapids) and others

$10K for KFOI

We are delighted to announce a seed grant award for $10,000 from the Ben & Jerry's Foundation for our work on the northeast Polk County Beltway and transportation issues in the Des Moines metro area.

This seed funding will allow us to hire a dedicated community organizer who can follow the issues, alert citizens to the various steps in the environmental review process for the road, and organize members to provide input to decision-makers at key moments.

This is a tremendous opportunity! For further details about the open position, please see our web site, www.kfoi.org.

We promised to raise $20,000 in local funds to demonstrate that this is an issue the community cares about. If you would like to contribute, please send it to:

1000 Friends of Iowa
3850 Merle Hay Road, Suite 309
Des Moines, IA 50310.

STAFF PERSON NEEDED

1000 Friends of Iowa seeks a full-time transportation Program Coordinator to organize and educate citizens on smart growth and transportation issues in the Des Moines metro area, particularly Northeast Polk County. Applicant must have experience in community, grassroots, or political organizing; ability to develop and implement effective program strategies; excellent written and verbal communication skills; interest in or experience with land use and/or transportation issues; and ability to build coalitions across lines of race and class.

For application details, go to www.kfoi.org.

Immediate vacancy; open until filled.
